

Jared Grounds
Purdue University Spring 2020
CGT 11600-001
Daniel Triplett

Research

With many programmers now working from home and virtual reality equipment become increasingly more affordable, it is important to begin including this technology in more careers. Home and office environments are often distracting, and companies spend money on multiple monitors which can otherwise be spent on VR technology. The included model represents a virtual reality scene which allows programmers to focus on their tasks, while also providing extra workspace at no extra cost.

References

Monitor

Chair

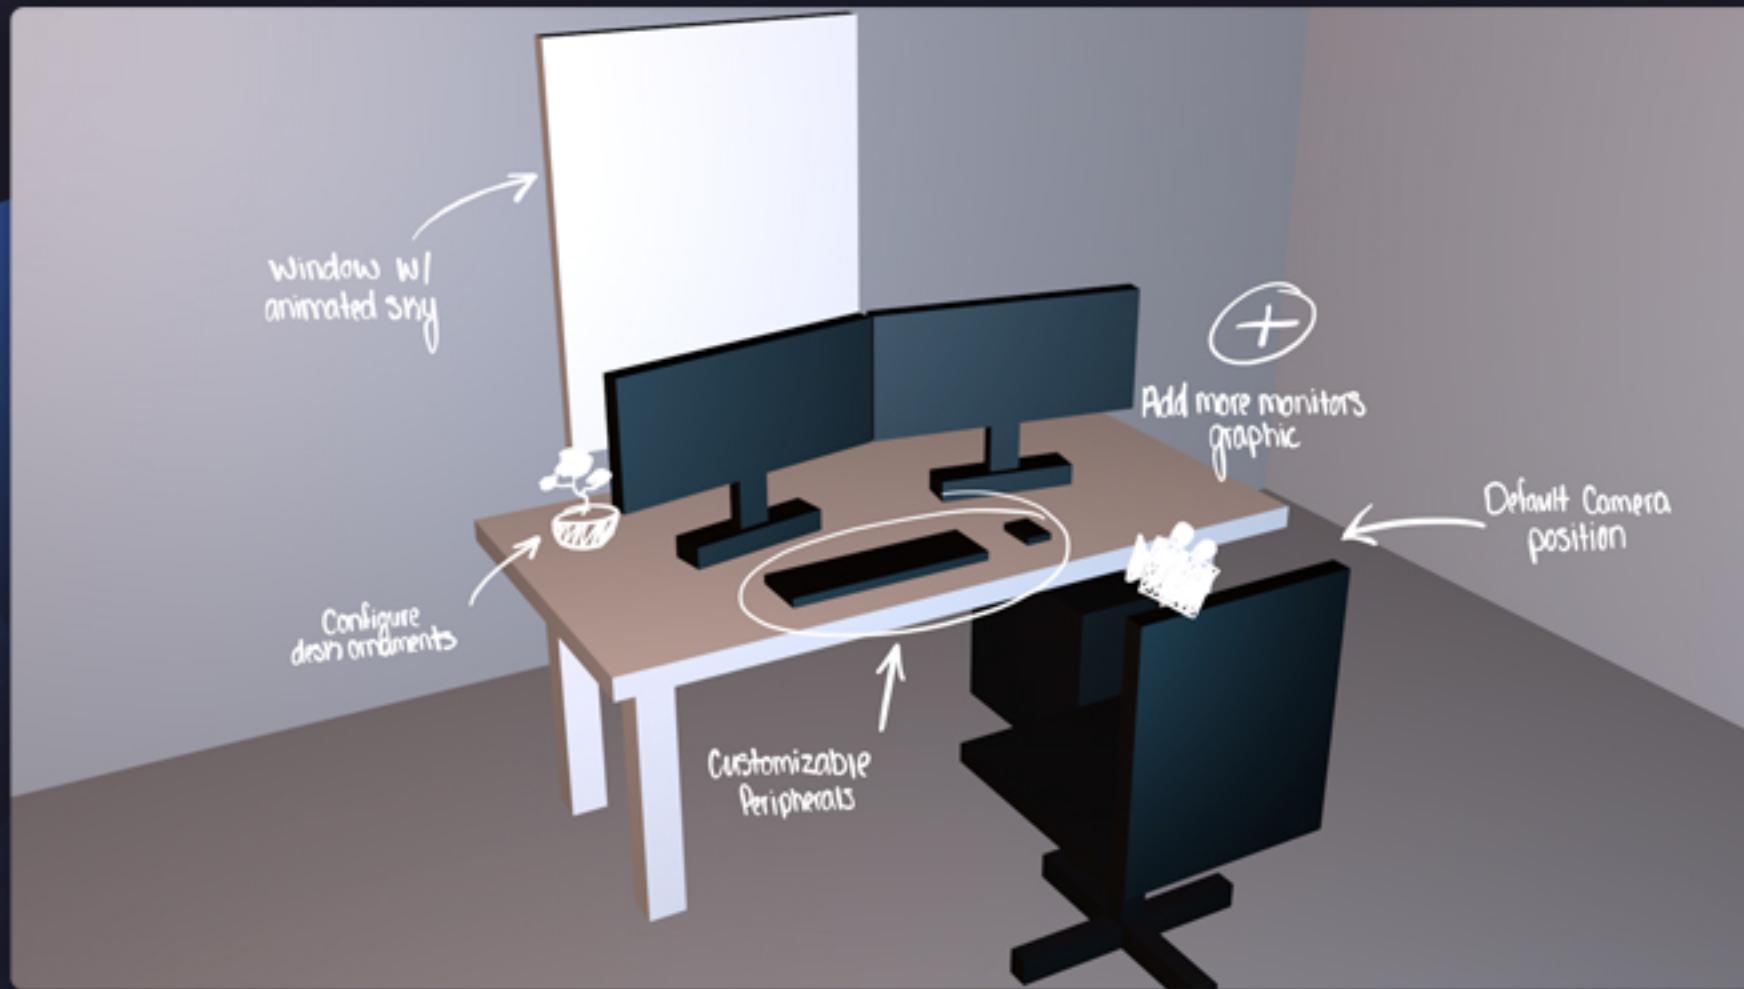

Keyboard

References

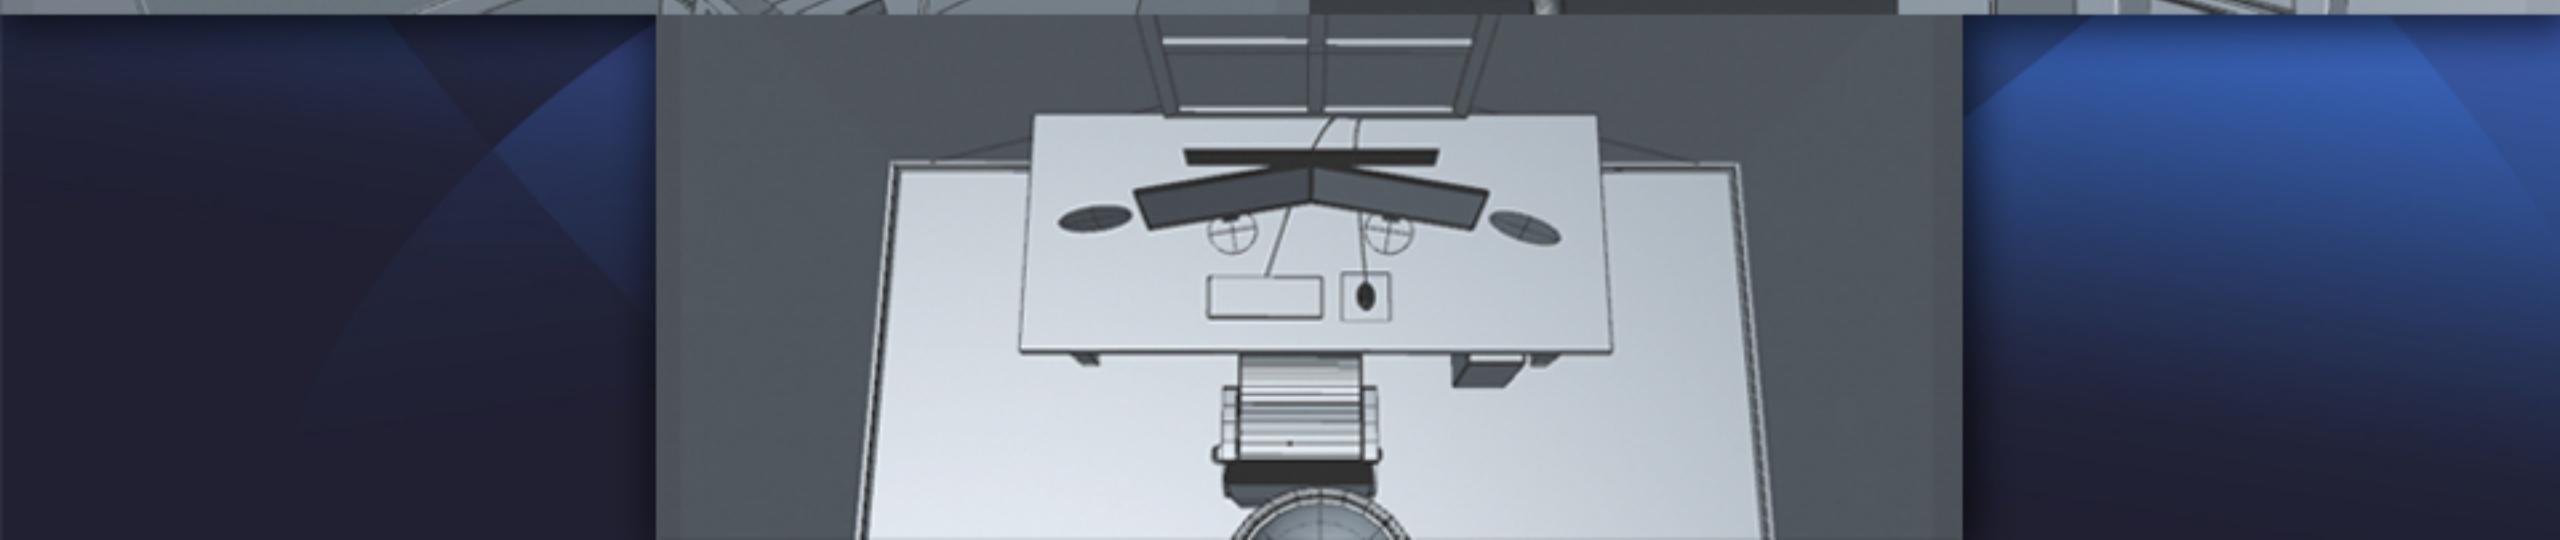

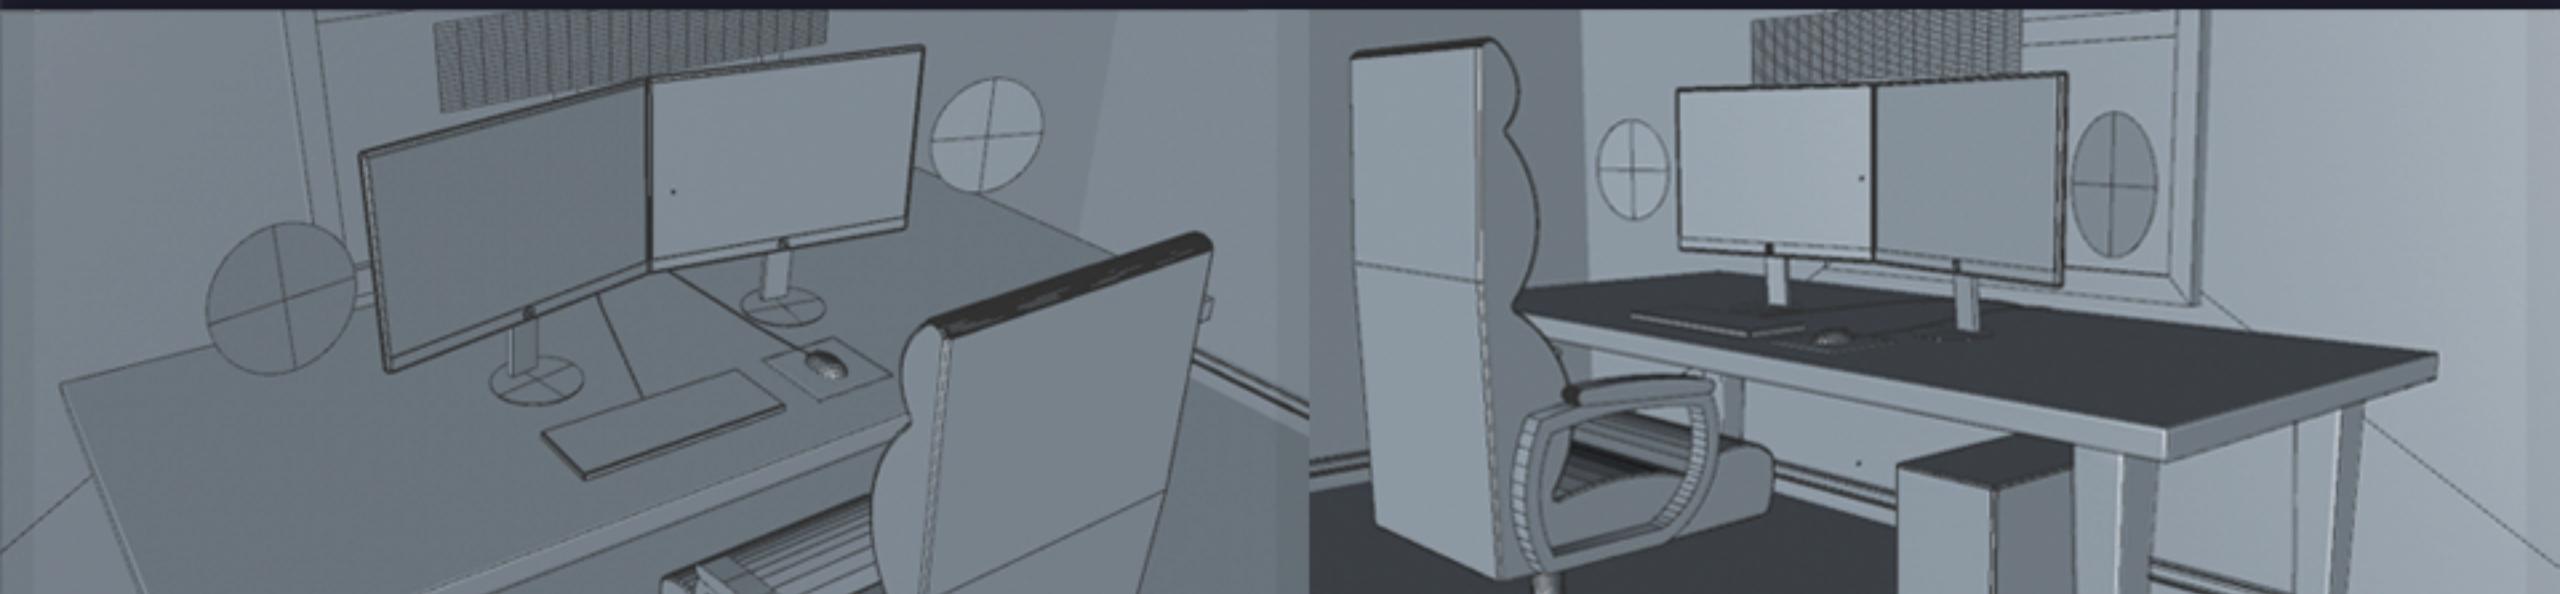

Room Design

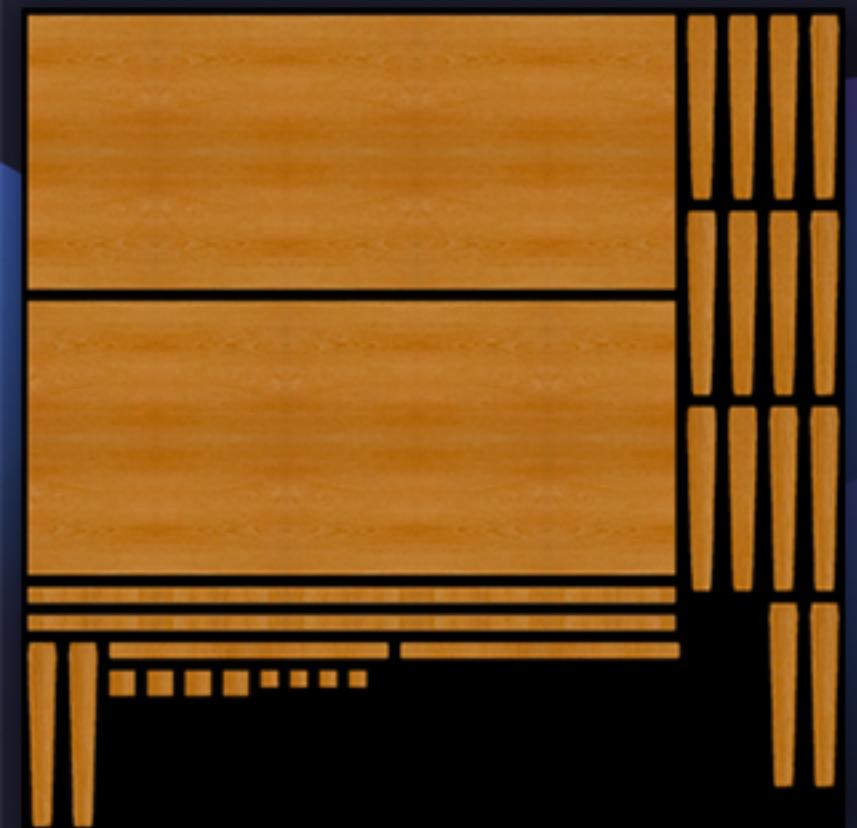

Block-out

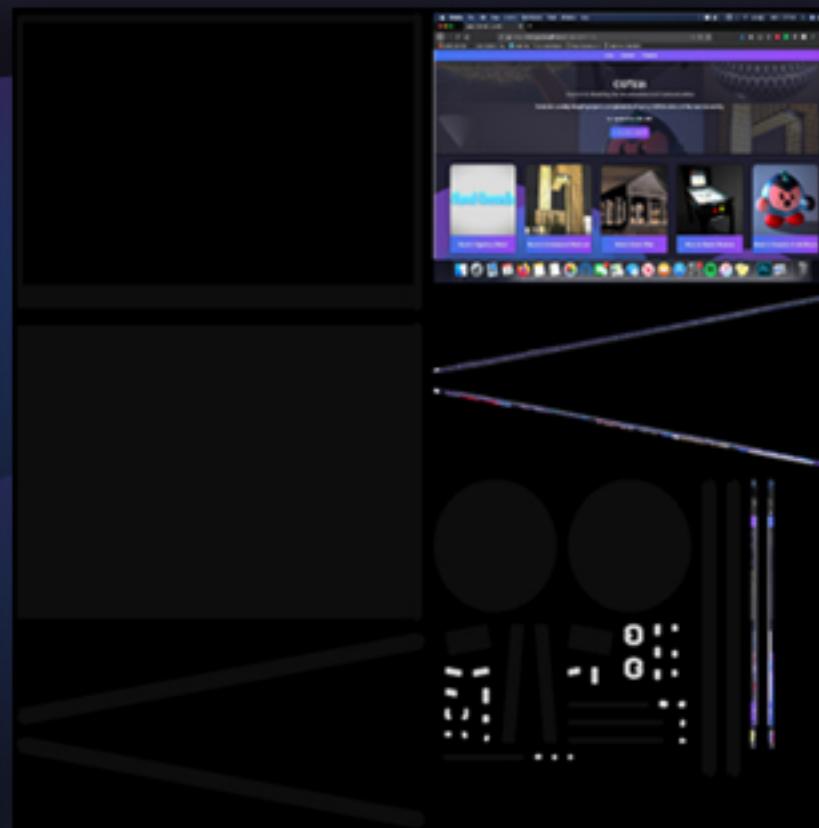

Final Geometry

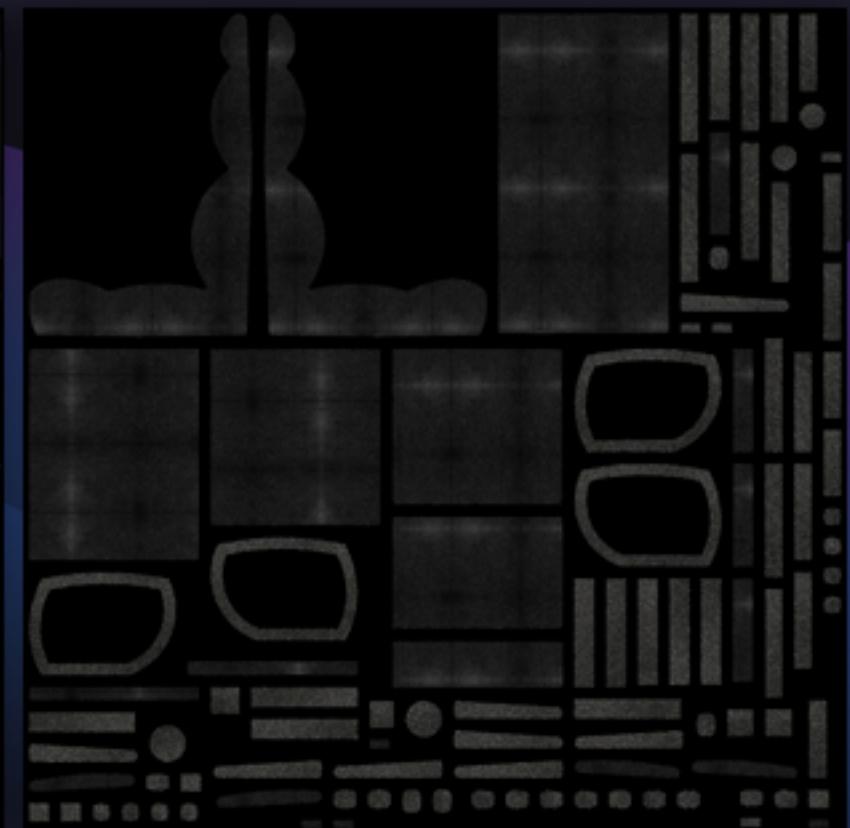

UVs and Textures

Desk

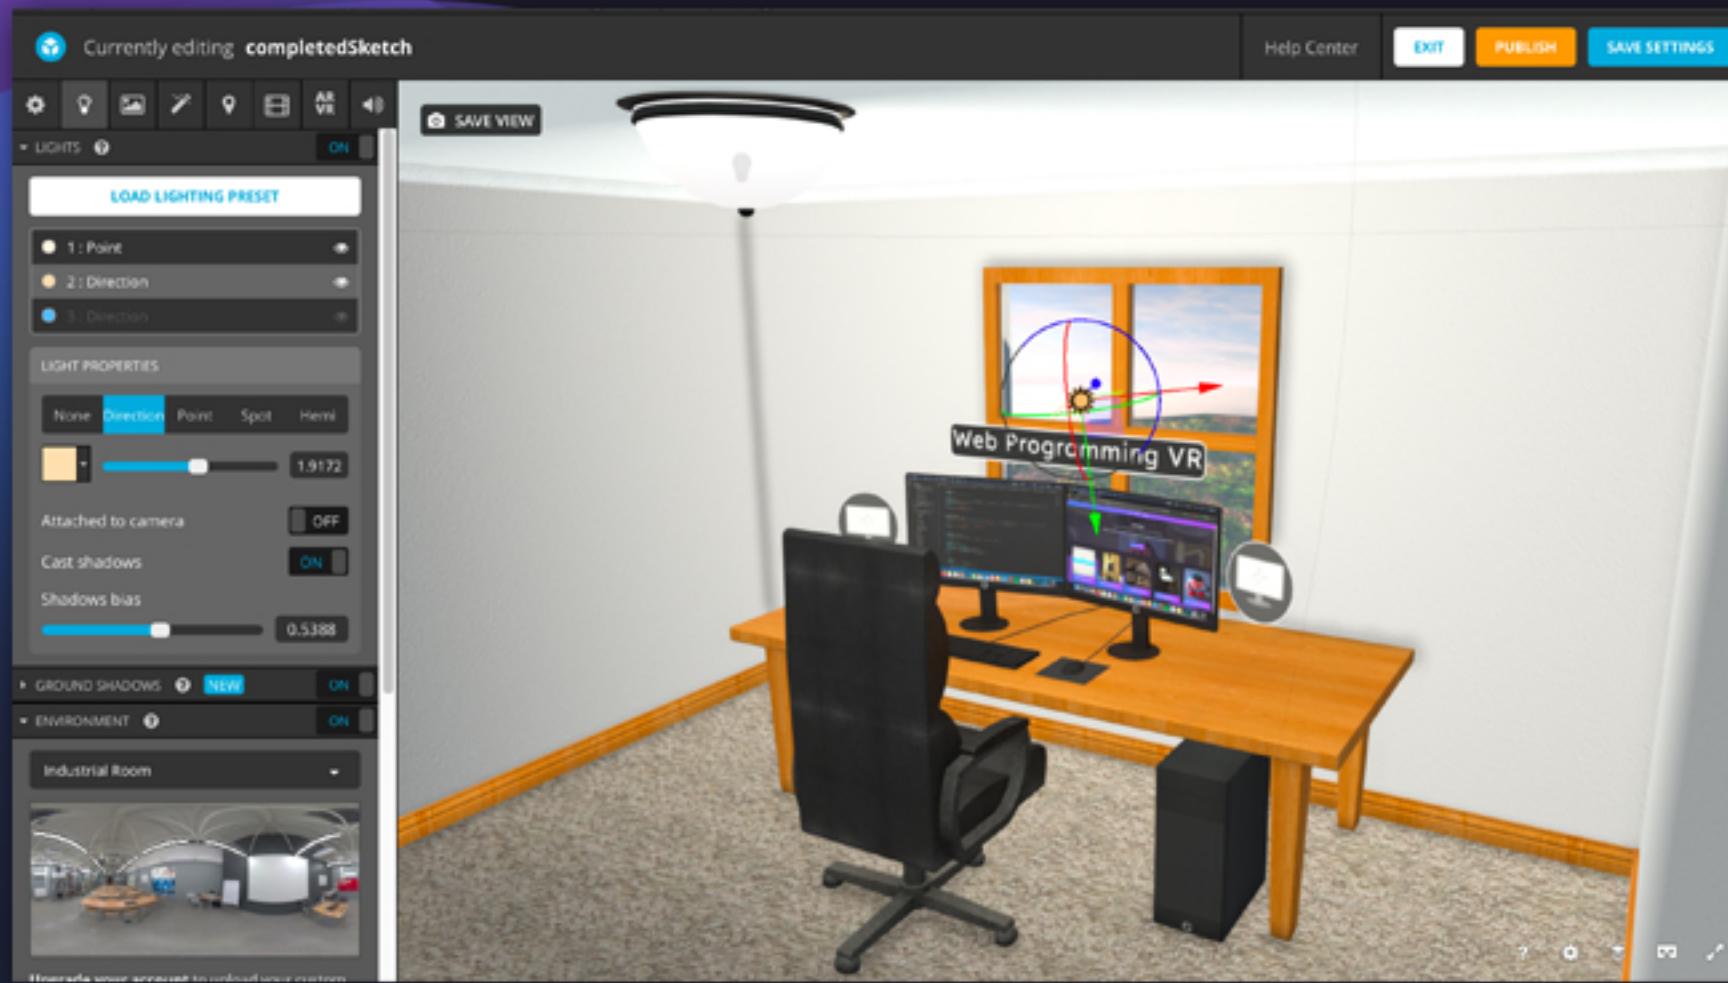

Monitor

Chair

Final Lighting

Final Render

